

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

An article for forming a box-like body, particularly for storage of media containers, comprising a sheet-like element that is folded so as to form a tubular body that can be flattened and forms two larger faces joined by an upper minor face and a lower minor face; an inner flap and an outer flap are provided respectively on one of the free edges of each one of the larger faces, and the flaps can be mutually overlapped in order to form the box-like body, the article further comprising, on the inner flap, a layer of self-adhesive material protected by a removable protective layer, means being further provided for removing the protective layer by way of automatic devices.